Lecture Times: Monday, Wednesday, Friday: 2:00-2:50pm

Lecture Location: Tilton Memorial Hall 301

Course Objective

ECON-3980 studies the role of economics in evaluating education and education policy. This course will study topics like Human Capital Theory, Education Production, Peer Effects, Externalities, Public vs Private schools and several others. This course will familiarize you with both the theory behind these topics and the empirical evidence and methods used by economists.

Program Objective

1. Apply standard economic theories to understand how individuals make education choices.
2. Apply standard economic theories to explain and predict education markets and their inefficiencies.
3. Understand the role of economic theory and thinking in evaluating education policies.

Learning Outcomes

Students should be able to:

1. Define and understand the differences between the human capital model and the signaling model.
2. Understand methods used by economists to evaluate education policies.
3. Understand and Model the Education Production Function.
4. Define the return to education and understand its empirical estimates.
5. Understand and evaluate the debate regarding school accountability.
6. Define and understand externalities and peer effects in education.

7. Understand the various degrees of school choice and their effects.
8. Contribute to debates regarding many education policies using economic theory and evidence.

Organization of the Class

Prerequisite: The prerequisite for this course is ECON 1010.

Textbook: There are currently no good textbooks for Economics of Education (though one is in the works). Because of this there will be no required textbook for this course. There will, however, be assigned articles to be read - links to these articles will be available on this course's Blackboard website as well as below.

Web Page: All information for this class including homework assignments and class notes can be accessed through mytulane.blackboard.com

Grading: Your grade will be determined as a combination of your participation, exam scores, and your homework scores. The breakdown is as follows:

Participation	5 %
Homeworks	15 %
Exam 1	20 %
Exam 2	20 %
Final Exam	40 %

Participation: Your participation grade will be based on a combination of attending class, participating in class discussions, and posting on the blackboard "discussion board." For posting on blackboard, each student should post at least 3 times during the course. These posts should be comments or questions about the reading before the class in which that paper will be discussed. If you post these 3 times and regularly attend class and are involved, you will receive full marks for this portion of your grade.

Problem Sets: There will be 5 problem sets due during the class, your lowest scoring homework grade will be dropped. These will be due in class on the day designated. Answer keys will be provided so no late problem sets will be accepted. If you are unable to attend class that day, you either need to make arrangements to turn it in early or have a classmate hand it in for you.

You may collaborate with others on the concepts in the problem sets, however, each student must individually write up their own answers. In addition, you must write the names of all the people you worked with on top of your assignment. Problem sets that are simply duplicates of each other will receive a score of 0.

The assignments will be due the following days:

Jan 31st, Feb 12th, March 21st, April 2nd, April 25th

Each assignment will be posted at least 1 week before it is due.

Exams: There will be 2 midterms and a final exam for this course. The dates are:

Midterm 1: Monday Feb 17th, during class

Midterm 2: Friday March 28th, during class

Final Exam: Friday May 2nd, 9:00-11:30am, same classroom

There will be no alternate dates provided for the exams. Exams are to be taken as scheduled except in the case of a documented illness or family emergency. Students are required to inform me before the exam date if this is the case, except when this is impossible. If you have an excused absence your final exam will be reweighed to include the weight of the missing midterm. Unexcused absences will result in an exam grade of zero.

The final exam must be taken in order to pass the class, so please make any summer plans for after the final exam date.

Exam Re-grade Policy: If an administrative error has been made in calculating your grade (such as an arithmetic error in adding up your score) no re-grade needs to be submitted. Merely bring the error to my attention so I can correct it. If you desire an exam re-grade, please do the following:

- Submit a written request for the re-grade within one week of the exam hand back date.
- In your written request, enumerate questions deserving special attention and an explanation of why the questions require more attention.
- Attach the original version of your exam to this written statement.

Note, that your whole exam may be re-graded upon submission of a re-grade.

Class Policies

Attendance: Attendance for this class is mandatory. This is especially important for this course because there is no textbook, which means that all of the material for this class is given in in the class notes and readings.

Academic Honesty: I believe that everyone should pass this course on their own merits. It is unfair to yourself, your classmates, and your future employers if you cheat. All students are responsible for knowing and adhering to Tulane University's Honor Code, available at <http://www.tulane.edu/~jruscher/dept/Honor.Code.html>. Any violations of the Honor Code will be punished in accordance with University policy.

Course Updates: It is possible that I will need to contact you all with updated information regarding the course. This will either come through your university e-mail or via announcements on mytulane.blackboard.com. It is your responsibility to regularly check your Tulane registered e-mail account and the course website. Note that grades may not be distributed by email.
