BUDGET

The Gallery, which in FY2009-10 had an operating budget of approximately $700,000, completed the year with a balance of $6,442.74. The total revenues for the year were $702,957.15 and the total expenses equaled $696,514.77.

The Gallery received support from Tulane University in the amount of $441,022, which included a generous contribution of $100,000 given annually from the Newcomb College Institute. These monies cover salaries, fringe benefits, operating supplies, and the operations of the Tulane Collection. The Gallery receives interest revenue from its endowment accounts annually of approximately $90,000, along with an additional donations from corporate, foundation, and individuals. The total contributions were $182,837.29.

The December 31, 2008 market value for all Newcomb Art Gallery Endowed Funds was $1,800,604.00. This is the corpus endowment, which cannot be spent.

PHILANTHROPIC OVERVIEW

On August 2, 2010, Tulane University Gift Accounting reported that the Newcomb Art Gallery received $169,881 from 245 donors. Yet, we also received a donation from Carol Downes Cudd and Robert C. Cudd III for $20,000 in March 2010, which was transferred but not included in the Gift Accounting report. Thus, our actual total gifts were $189,991. This is an increase of more than 104% from last fiscal year based on reports from Tulane University. This year, the Gallery’s National Advisory Board giving reached 100%.

STRATEGIC PLANNING AND POLICY

A strategic plan was approved by the National Advisory Board in September 2009, and by the Dean of the School of Liberal Arts, one month later, in October.

The Gallery Director, Senior Curator, Legal Counsel from Planned Gifts, and a representative of the University Senate Committee for Collections are currently reviewing a Collections Management Policy draft prepared by Registrar of University Collection.
EXHIBITIONS
2009/10

Four exhibitions were mounted in 2009-10, drawing a combined attendance of 8,780 persons.

American Letterpress: The Art of Hatch Show Print
August 12 – October 11, 2009

Organized by the Smithsonian Institution Travelling Exhibition Services, this exhibition featured 121 posters and 29 hand-crafted wooden printing blocks to explore the time-honored graphic art tradition through the work of Nashville's Hatch Show Print, one of the nation's oldest and continuously printing shops.

Total exhibition attendance: 3,200

Jaune Quick-to-See Smith: Made in America
October 21 – December 23, 2009

Including drawing, printmaking, painting, and mixed-media installations, the exhibition examined American Indian life in contrast to the consumerism of contemporary society. The show was organized by the Belger Foundation, Kansas City, Missouri, and curated by Charles Lovell.

Total exhibition attendance: 1,100

Polaridad Complementaria: Recent Works from Cuba
January 16 – March 14, 2010

An exhibition of contemporary Cuban art in various media, organized by the Centro de Arte Contemporanea in Havana, Cuba, and toured by International Art and Artists in Washington, D.C. The show was part of Sí Cuba, the Gallery’s citywide art initiative, which promoted seventeen artistic, historical, and/or cultural programs relating to Cuba held from January until April 2010.

Total exhibition attendance: 2,180
(This number does not reflect the attendance of events initiated by the Gallery but hosted at other Sí Cuba venues.)
Joan Mitchell: Works on Paper
March 31 – June 27, 2010

A comprehensive survey of Joan Mitchell’s works on paper from a 36-year period, organized by the Cheim & Read Gallery, New York and the Joan Mitchell Foundation. There were two companion Joan Mitchell exhibitions, Paintings at the New Orleans Museum of Art and Prints at the Contemporary Art Center.

Total exhibition attendance: 3,338
(This number does not reflect the attendance at the other exhibition venues.)

SELECT EDUCATIONAL AND PUBLIC PROGRAMS

American Letterpress: The Art of Hatch Show Print

Approximately 350 people attended the opening reception, featuring music by Gal Holiday and the Honky Tonk Revue. The group’s songs of country, rockabilly, swing and jazz, reflected the influence of many of the artists featured on the exhibition posters.

Exhibition educational programs were funded by a grant from the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Services (SITES). These are described below.

A lecture by Jim Sherraden, designer and manager of Hatch Show Print since 1984, discussed the company’s century-long history, stressing their fidelity to the craft of letterpress printing in an era of digital media. Sherraden spoke with and gave exhibition tours to Tulane printmaking and digital media classes and did studio visits with students.

A panel discussion, Value of the Poster: Music, Culture and Traditions, explored the music and vernacular culture of New Orleans and the South. Also funded by a grant from the Louisiana Endowment for the Humanities, the panel included Nick Spitzer, folklorist, producer of the NPR program American Routes, and Tulane University professor of American Studies; Bruce Raeburn, curator of the Hogan Jazz Archives at Tulane University, author, and musician; and Dr. Michael White, professor of Spanish and African American Music at Xavier University, jazz musician, and composer. The moderator was Marquette Folley, project director at SITES. Marquette and Education Coordinator Shelley Boles also did an interview about the panel on WWOZ radio station.
An all-ages print workshop introduced both youth and adults to the themes and artistic process of the exhibition. The workshop included an interactive gallery exploration, a presentation by print artist/instructor Laura Richens, followed by a hands-on studio activity where participants designed and made their own postcards based on the exhibition.

Two films, chosen for their cultural, musical or historical content as it related to the exhibition, were screened. These included Make 'Em Dance: The Hackberry Ramblers Story about America’s oldest performing band and Faubourg Treme: The Untold Story of Black New Orleans an exploration of the history of the storied New Orleans neighborhood.

Jaune Quick-To-See Smith: Made In America

Artist Jaune Quick-to-See Smith traveled to New Orleans specifically to work in the community with youth. Smith and her artist son, Neal Smith-Ambrose offered three art workshops at Langston Hughes Academy Charter School and The Porch 7th Ward Cultural Organization. Participants worked with the artists to create monoprints with non-toxic inks and listened as the two artists read and performed Coyote Stories drawn from American Indian moral tales.

Smith led a gallery tour of her work for Xavier students and presented a public lecture on American Indian artists in contemporary art. Students from Akili Academy of New Orleans visited the exhibition, toured the sculpture throughout Tulane’s campus, and created artwork inspired by the exhibition. A podcast interview with Smith was made during her visit and is archived in the Gallery.

Polaridad Complementaria: Recent Works from Cuba

Through focusing on contemporary Cuban art, the Gallery collaborated with several Tulane entities: Latin American Studies, the Latin American Library, Cuban Studies, and the Art History Department. The community at-large participated through the Sí Cuba initiative’s citywide events and programs including a panel of international and national experts in the field of Cuban art, lectures by Alejandro Anreus on the work of artist Luis Cruz Azaceta, and a discussion of Cuban contemporary art by Miranda Lash, Curator of Contemporary Art at the New Orleans Museum of Art. Additionally, there was a book reading and Cuban musical performances. Teachers and the entire 6th grade class from Metairie Park Country Day School visited the Gallery and Latin American Library to enhance their knowledge of the art and history of Cuba.

Collaboration with the Newcomb College Institute provided an opportunity for several studio art students to organize Doodle Madness, a late night event for Tulane undergraduates. More than 300 students participated, creating wearable art and an oversized comic book.

Joan Mitchell: Works On Paper

The Gallery organized, with grant support from the Joan Mitchell Foundation, Remembering Joan Mitchell, a three-day educational symposium on the artist’s life and work. The event drew 255 people from twelve U.S. states, France, and nine cities in Louisiana.

In addition to the symposium, artist Elizabeth Underwood, director of Aorta Projects, led an all-ages workshop exploring the potential for emotional expression in abstract art using Mitchell’s work as inspiration. Also, several schools attended the exhibition, thanks to The Joan Mitchell Foundation, which organized an Educators Evening for teachers and art organizations. Participants toured the exhibition, learned about gallery resources, and enjoyed a reception. Those in attendance were given transportation vouchers to bring their students to the exhibition, for which several took advantage.

In addition to the university students that toured the exhibition, parents who visited campus for one of the ten parent orientations in June had the opportunity to visit the gallery.

TEACHING, EDUCATION AT TULANE UNIVERSITY AND COMMUNITY OUTREACH

Gallery Director, Charles Lovell, chaired a public educational panel on university art galleries and museums for Louisiana Art Works. Senior Curator, Sally Main, gave two presentations on Newcomb Pottery to TIDES classes taught by Meghan Freeman and Laura Richens as well as two public lectures on Clara Driscoll and the Tiffany Glass Studio to the Jefferson Parish Bar Association’s Women’s Auxiliary and the members of the Pierre de Mandeville chapter of the DAR. Additionally, she was the university contact and display coordinator for the PBS series, Craft in America, while the production crew was in New Orleans. Tom Strider, Registrar of University Collections, gave a tour of Tulane’s off-site art storage at the Jefferson Davis Avenue Warehouse (JDW) for a Baroque art history class taught by Dr. Suzanne Walker.

FACILITY IMPROVEMENTS

As part of the implementation of the strategic plan, the Newcomb Art Gallery now has its own numerical designation on all Tulane University maps and directories: Building #81. The Gallery was also added to existing signage at three locations in front of the Woldenberg Art Center. Newcomb Art Gallery banners and etched glass windows were installed at the Gallery entrance and in Woodward Way, respectively.

Ongoing roof leaks in the Gallery were successfully repaired by Facilities Services, and temperature and humidity controls continue to function to professional museum standards. The Gallery floors were stripped, sanded, and finished before the start of the 2010-2011 exhibition season.

The Gallery also purchased a new reception desk, which will allow for better visitor services. There will be adequate space for a greeter, display of Gallery and exhibition related materials, and a seating area for visitors to view interactive education materials.

New flat files and painting racks were added to the JDW facility.
FACILITY RENTAL

The Woodward Way breezeway was rented to campus groups for special events from three to seven times per month during the school year at $100 per use. Rentals totaled $4,000 for FY2009-10. The Gallery was rented this summer for the Johnson-Weil wedding for a $1,500 rental fee.

ART ON CAMPUS

Loaned works for display from the Newcomb Art Collection to the Dean of the School of Liberal Arts offices in Newcomb Hall.

The Gallery provided during the past year sample works and/or marketing posters at the Lavin-Bernick Center for Student Life to advertise each changing exhibition.

MARKETING AND ADVERTISING

The Gallery generated a variety of exhibition marketing materials, including postcards, print advertisements, pole banners, press releases, cd-roms, press kits, rack cards, e-announcements, and an annual newsletter. The newsletter was published as both a hard copy and electronically via www.issuu.com. Design work for all exhibition marketing materials was done by Teresa Parker-Farris. Educational marketing materials were executed by Shelley Boles (with the exception of the Hatch Show Print educational brochure done by Tom Varisco).

The Gallery also publicized its exhibitions and programs via radio (paid advertisements on WWNO and PSAs on WTUL and WWOZ) and the web (listings on artmuseumtouring.com, artsneworleans.com, findartnola.com, and neworleanscvb.com). Lastly, the Gallery utilized its own website and social media sites (Facebook and Twitter) toward exhibition marketing.

For the Sí Cuba initiative, the Gallery developed content, collected venue information, edited material, and created the original domain for the website: www.sicubaneworleans.com.

MEMBERSHIP

In 2009-2010, the Gallery’s membership program remained secondary to its general support program (wherein individuals donated funds to show support, not to become members with benefits). Nonetheless, individuals who gave money were counted as members, thus adding 229 persons. The annual holiday art sale preview party remained a key membership event with forty-five individuals joining or renewing. Membership coordinator Teresa Parker Farris attended the Art Museum Membership Conference in June 2010 and gained new strategies for building the Gallery’s membership program for 2010-2011.

NATIONAL ADVISORY BOARD

The members of our National Advisory Board, under the leadership of Chair Julie McCollam, continued to support the Gallery financially and by promoting exhibition events and programs in the community. The Board’s first fundraising gala, the Sí Cuba Patron Party, was held in January 2010 and netted $24,000 to support the exhibition Polaridad Complementaria: Recent Works from Cuba.

CAMPUS COMMITTEE FORMED

The new Interdisciplinary Committee for Art and Visual Culture (ICAVC) was founded in January of 2010 to promote teaching and collaboration between the Newcomb Art Gallery and faculty members from a broad spectrum of disciplines. Funding in the amount of $20,000 was transferred to the guardianship of the Gallery by the School of Liberal Arts Dean’s office for the purposes of awarding grants to professors who collaborate with the Gallery on educational programs and events.

AWARD RECOGNITION

The Newcomb Art Gallery received a 2010 Community Arts Award from the Arts Council of New Orleans. Out of the five awards bestowed, Newcomb was the only gallery to be given this honor.
TULANE UNIVERSITY ART COLLECTION

Appraisals
Forty-six significant works from Tulane collections received written professional appraisals.

Permissions Forms
New forms for individuals or organizations seeking to reproduce artworks from the collection have been developed. An application form and a permissions contract were created with input from and approval of the Office of General Counsel.

Loans
An 1838 portrait of Charles Gayarré by Jean Joseph Vaudechamp was loaned to the Dallas Museum of Fine Art.

Some sixty-five artworks were removed from display or gathered from poor storage situations in Jones Hall, the School of Medicine, and #2 Audubon and taken to the JDW facility.

Policy
An Exhibition Review Policy was adopted in Fall 2009.
