

MailOnline

Oldest European fort in inland USA discovered in Great Smoky Mountains, 450 YEARS after it was destroyed by Native American tribesmen

- Fort San Juan was built in 1567, long before the British colony at Roanoke
- The fort was destroyed by local Native Americans less than 18 months later
- Its demise marked the end of Spanish attempts to colonise North America

By Ruth Styles

PUBLISHED: 08:03 EST, 24 July 2013 | UPDATED: 11:16 EST, 24 July 2013

488 shares

23

View comments

The remains of the oldest European fort in North America have been unearthed by a team of archaeologists from the University of Michigan.

The remnants of the building, which was constructed by Spanish would-be colonists, were discovered in the foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains - a sub range of the Appalachians.

Named Fort San Juan, it was destroyed less than 18 months after it was built, but is historically significant because it marks the end of Spanish attempts to colonise North America - clearing the way for the British.

Buried: Although the settlement of Cuenca was discovered in 2004, the fort has proved elusive until now

© University of Michigan

Protection: The V-shaped Spanish moat was a key part of the fort's defences but couldn't save it in the end

Built by Spanish Captain Juan Pardo in 1567, the fort pre-dates Sir Walter Raleigh's doomed colony at Roanoke by almost 20 years, while the Jamestown settlement, which marked the start of the British domination of North America, wasn't built for another four decades.

Almost 300 miles from the Atlantic coast, the fort was occupied for just 18 months before it was destroyed by Native American Cherokee tribesmen and all but one of the 120 soldiers in the garrison killed.

The settlement protected by the forts, Cuenca, was also destroyed by the Cherokee - ending Spanish colonial ambitions in North America in the process.

Although remains of some of the Cuenca homes had previously been discovered, the fort itself had proved elusive until now.

'We have known for more than a decade where the Spanish soldiers were living,' revealed Christopher Rodning, an archaeologist from Tulane University.

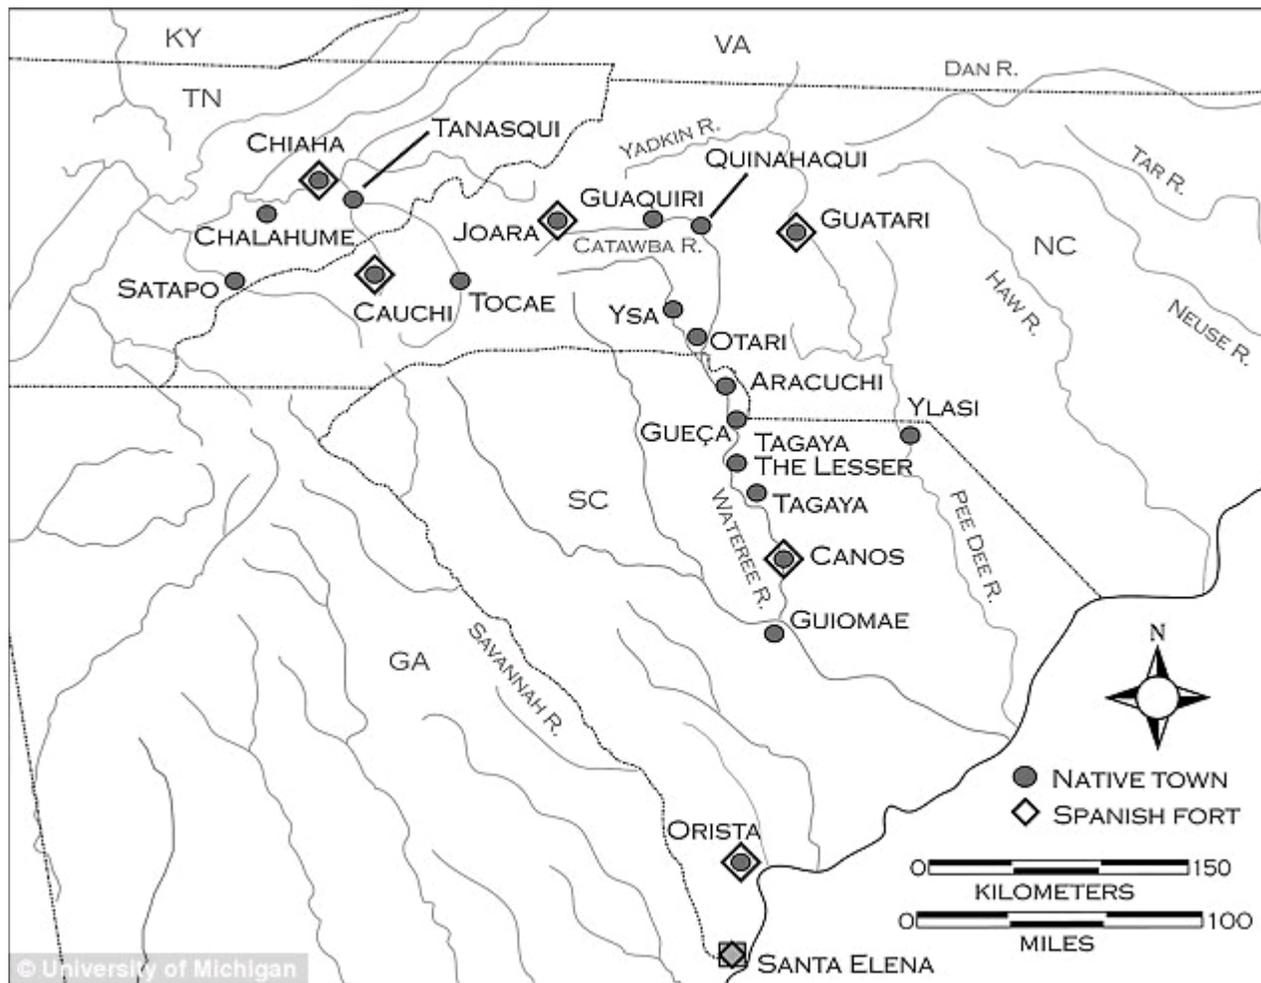

© US Government

Reimagining: William Henry Powell's 1853 Discovery of the Mississippi depicts the early Spanish colonists

© University of Michigan

Remains: Artifacts left behind by Spanish settlers include this clothing hook, used to fasten doublets

Settlements: This map shows where the seven doomed forts once stood, including Fort San Juan (Joara)

'This summer we were trying to learn more about the Mississippian mound at Berry, one that was built by the people of Joara [a Native American settlement], and instead we discovered part of the fort. For all of us, it was an incredible moment.'

Using a combination of large-scale excavations and magnetometry, which produces X-ray like images of the site, scientists were able to pinpoint sections of the fort, including the moat and a gravelled surface that is likely to have been the entrance to the fort.

The searchers also discovered Spanish majolica pottery and other artifacts including iron nails and a hook thought to have been used to button doublets.

The Spanish garrison are thought to have been searching for gold in the foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains with - they thought - the blessing of local tribespeople.

'The soldiers believed that when their gifts were accepted, it meant that the native people were their subjects,' said Robin Beck of the University of Michigan.

Intact: The corner bastion, moat and entryway are visible in this shot, taken from the south side of the fort

Success: Robin Beck (right), Dave Moore (centre) and Chris Rodning (right) led the team of archaeologists

'But to the natives, it was simply an exchange. When the soldiers ran out of gifts, they expected the natives to keep on feeding them.

'The same thing nearly happened to [British] colonists at Jamestown,' he revealed. 'The colonists nearly starved to death during the winter of 1609 but Jamestown was in a very different situation to that of Fort San Juan and Cuenca.

'English settlers kept coming but when Fort San Juan fell, it was gone for good.'

Archaeologist David Moore, of Warren Wilson College, added: 'The events at Fort San Juan represent a microcosm of the colonial experience across the continent.

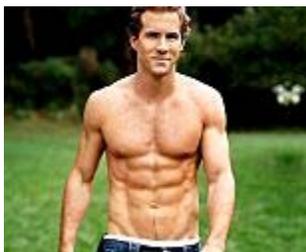

'Spain's failure created an opening that England exploited at Jamestown, when America's familiar frontier narrative begins.

'For Native Americans, though, this was the beginning of a long-term and often tragic reshaping of their precolonial world.'

FROM THE WEB

Get A Free eBook On

Ryan Reynolds's Diet &

Miley Cyrus' Shorts Are

Billionaire Tells

by Taboola

MOST WATCHED NEWS VIDEOS

- Previous
- 1
- 2
- 3
- Next

- News reporter draws giant penis on live TV

- Teenage girl attacked by shark at Brazilian beach resort

- Moment two divers are nearly eaten by humpback whales

- Transgender teens in love: He was a girl, she was a boy

- The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge have named their baby son

- William and Kate take their baby on his first outing

- Baby George arrives at London's Kensington Palace

- MILLIONS WILL DIE! Candidate's hysterical campaign

- Instagram videos show a depressing vision of North Korea

- A haunting glimpse into the Tibetan sky burial

- Train crash leaves at least 77 dead in Spain

- Queen is 'thrilled' at arrival of first great-grandson

MOST READ NEWS

- Previous
- 1
- 2
- 3
- Next

• Watch: Woman has epic meltdown at Apple Store Genius Bar and...

• Boy who will be King George VI: But he may have to wait 50...

• 'MILLIONS WILL DIE' without a carbon tax to fix global...

• Look out, he's behind you! Eight-ton orca leaps 15ft into...

• Pictured: Horrifying moment Spanish train derails killing at...

• Finally laid to rest 95 years on, 21 German soldiers found...

• Pregnant woman and friend accidentally drive down boat ramp...

• George H.W. Bush shaves his head to support his security...

- Pictured: The before-and-after weight loss photo taken ONE...

- Now Kate's off to stay with mum: Prince George's busy...

- News reporter unwittingly draws giant weiner on live TV

- Despite her ordeal, Kate looked like Snow White with...

Comments (23)

- Newest
- Oldest
- Best rated
- Worst rated

View all

Mexico is part of North America DM. - Casey , Brunswick, 25/7/2013 06:13 >>>>> I know, I know!!!

- David , Windsor, United Kingdom, 25/7/2013 08:37

Click to rate _ _ Rating (0)

Report abuse

Oh, great. The British. Oh, great. Jeffrey Amherst.

- JiminAz , Phoenix USA, 25/7/2013 06:47

Click to rate _ _ Rating (0)

Report abuse

Mexico is part of North America DM.

- Casey , Brunswick, 25/7/2013 06:13

Click to rate _ _ Rating 1

Report abuse

Fort Caroline, near Jacksonville, Florida, is the site of the oldest "inland" European fort in North America. It was founded on 30 June 1564 by the French and predates the founding of St. Augustine by over a year.

- Anglophile , Florida, 25/7/2013 04:02

Click to rate __ Rating 1

Report abuse

Fort Caroline, near Jacksonville, Florida, is the site of the oldest "inland" European fort in North America. It was founded on 30 June 1564 by the French and predates the founding of St. Augustine by over a year.

- Anglophile , Florida, 25/7/2013 03:55

Click to rate __ Rating 1

Report abuse

Dm I think you must be mistaken. You have written that Built by Spanish Captain Juan Pardo in 1567 and that it is the Oldest European Fort. How can that be when Saint Augustine, Fl is the oldest after being established in 1565 by Spanish admiral Pedro Menéndez de Avilés?

- Ony , VA, 25/7/2013 01:34

Click to rate __ Rating 6

Report abuse

In 1567 the Spanish were just getting started, not making the end of efforts in North America! Oregon in 1819 was the one of the last areas ceded to the US. At least 1/2 of what is now the US, was subject outright to Spanish control or claims.

- esperpento , Houston, United States, 25/7/2013 01:22

Click to rate __ Rating 1

Report abuse

In 1567 the Spanish were just getting started, not making the end of efforts in North America! Oregon in 1819 was the one of the last areas ceded to the US. At least 1/2 of what is now the US, was subject outright to Spanish control or claims.

- esperpento , Houston, United States, 25/7/2013 01:19

Click to rate __ Rating (0)

Report abuse

Tell me again how the "natives" became native. I seem to have forgotten. Cherokee tribe should suffice.

- Midnight_Lurker , Denver, United States, 24/7/2013 23:12

Click to rate __ Rating 1

Report abuse

As someone who lives in the Blue Ridge mountains I found it irritating that you don't even say where said fort is actually located. It is in Burke County near Morganton. That wasn't so hard now was it?

- Manda , NC, 24/7/2013 21:43

Click to rate __ Rating 35

Report abuse

Share this comment

The views expressed in the contents above are those of our users and do not necessarily reflect the views of MailOnline.

Like
MailOnline

Follow
@DailyMailUK

Published by Associated Newspapers Ltd

Part of the Daily Mail, The Mail on Sunday & Metro Media Group

GlamEntertainment

© Associated Newspapers Ltd

